

LABOR TRAFFICKING FACT SHEET

What is labor trafficking?

Labor trafficking is when an individual, under force, fraud, or coercion, is made to perform labor services. What is the difference between labor trafficking and labor exploitation? Labor trafficking involves force, fraud, or coercion. Labor exploitation does not. What does force, fraud, or coercion mean? Force is physical violence such as kidnapping, rape, and restraint. Fraud includes false offers of employment, promises of marriage, a better life, or a career. Coercion can be threats to the victim and/or the victim's family, use of alcohol/drugs, and/or psychological abuse.
