Code Ann. § 35-1-10 et. seq. (Supp. 2004) (the "Act"), initiated an investigation into the activities of Cambridge Credit, Inc. ("Cambridge") and its officers and employees, including its President, owner and sole shareholder, Anne C. Brown ("Brown");

WHEREAS, throughout the investigation, Cambridge and Brown (collectively, the "Respondents") cooperated with the Division by providing documents requested by the Division;

WHEREAS, following the death of Brown's husband who was the former owner, manager and sole shareholder of Cambridge, Respondent Brown inherited from her husband's estate all of his interest in the stock of Cambridge;

WHEREAS, during her husband's life, Respondent Brown, who is a high school teacher, had not worked with her husband in Cambridge's business and did not understand the business, but nevertheless, following his death, had made good faith efforts to continue the business founded and previously operated by her deceased husband;

WHEREAS, notwithstanding her good intentions, the Division's investigation concluded that Cambridge and Brown engaged in acts or practices constituting violations of the Act and issued an Administrative Complaint detailing its findings; and

WHEREAS, without admitting but specifically denying the allegations of the Administrative Complaint, Respondents nevertheless wish to resolve the issues described in the Administrative Complaint by this Consent Order ("Order") rather than by a formal hearing before the Securities Commissioner (the "Commissioner");
